

Estate Valuations & Pricing Systems

Data Privacy Statement

Estate Valuations & Pricing Systems, Inc. does not collect, transmit or store client-proprietary, Personally Identifiable Information (PII) or Sensitive Personal Information (SPI) about decedents or grantors/recipients via any of the applications in EVP Office, including EstateVal.

Although client-proprietary, PII or SPI may be entered into the software when a portfolio is created, that data remains entirely local at the user's site. EstateVal and the other applications in EVP Office only transmit the security identifiers (CUSIPs, SEDOLs, ticker symbols, etc.) and the valuation date (Date of Death, Alternate Date, etc.) to EVP Systems' servers. None of the decedent's personal information (name, account number, title, lot size, transaction details, filename, notes, etc.) is sent to or stored by Estate Valuations & Pricing Systems.

Information about the user running the software is collected for each evaluation, for billing and auditing purposes, including the EVP Systems account code, the version of EVP Office, the version of Windows, the serial number of the computer, and the Windows username of the logged-in user. The applications also have a "passthrough" function that allows users to enter identifying information to be returned on their invoice, to more easily associate a specific evaluation with an estate, though its use is optional and non-identifiable information can be used.

EVP Everywhere, EVP Systems' evaluation webservice, has the ability to record and store information about the decedent or estate being evaluated, though as with the "passthrough" information in EVP Office, it is the user's decision what to deliver to our servers. The system itself can be used without disclosing any details, save the identifier of each security, the date it is to be evaluated for, and the type of evaluation. If identifying information is set, it is encrypted both in transit and at rest.

EVP Systems' mail-in evaluation service, EVP Professional Services, collects information about decedents and estates in order to properly run the evaluations requested. After an evaluation is processed, this information is no longer used except for billing purposes at the end of the month of the request.

Finally, EVP Systems has information about its clients and their employees, potentially including names, titles, postal addresses, phone numbers and e-mail addresses. This information is only used to contact our clients for purposes of doing business, including sending invoices and upgrade notices.

If any personal information beyond what is absolutely required to conduct business (such as Social Security numbers, driver's license numbers, or other sensitive personal information) is ever sent to EVP Systems -- for a decedent, estate, client or client's employee -- it is company policy to alert the client and then destroy the information.

EVP Systems respects both the European General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), does not sell or allow third-parties access to any of the client information it holds, and will provide or delete it upon request.

If you have any questions about how personal information is treated by EVP Systems, please contact our Privacy Department at (818) 313-6300 or privacy@evpsys.com.
